CENTRAL AMERICA

TZINTZUN'TZAN (MESO-AMERICAN, TZINTZUN'TZAN)
Tz'yu, Huey Quetzl
DIPLOMACY Tepuztec (t)

Small investments were made in a postal road between Cuyutec and Tarascan – little more than a track in the forest at the moment. Some small effort was also made to clear the scrubland around the city of TzinTzunTzan itself. Tz'yu met with the envoys from Zapotec and finally decided to throw in his lot with the southerners – it would give him more time to hunt and anyway.

ZAPOTEC KINGDOM OF MITLA (MESO-AMERICAN, MITLA)
Tzintzunotzlin, Son of Sky-Wheel-Speaker
DIPLOMACY TzinTzunTzan (incorporated)

Now was the time, TzinTzunotzlin spent long hours with Pachamatl and Xamtlac on the issue of TzinTzunTzan. No longer would he stand for Tz'yu's careless ways – his envoys must persuade the wayward ruler to join with the Zapotec once and for all. To his relief Pachamatl managed to bring it off and the Tzin would now be managed directly from Mitla. TzinTzunotzlin was pleased to be rid of old Maime – supposedly Tz'yu had decided not to marry the princess himself but had hoisted her of to some potentate in Cuyutec.
